

Leading community housing provider opens two new offices

Local community housing provider, Link Housing, has recently opened a new office in West Ryde and will soon unveil new larger office facilities in Chatswood on 17th September 2018.

The new offices will give the not-for-profit organisation the space to continue to provide quality, client-focused and comprehensive service to their growing community of housing applicants and residents within Northern Sydney and beyond.

Link Housing CEO, Andrew McAnulty, who has been at Link Housing for five years now, has led the organisation through a period of significant growth. Last year the organisation won tenders to manage 235 specialist disability accommodation tenancies and almost 1900 social housing tenancies, previously managed by the NSW Government.

“It is a very exciting period of growth for us. By the end of the year, we would have more than doubled our number of staff, properties under management and clients, largely due to the Social Housing Management Transfers (SHMT) program. There was no doubt we needed more space.” Mr McAnulty said.

Link Housing appointed Incorp to lead on the design and create a space that was flexible and in line with the organisation’s new branding and values. The new fit out will be complete for the Chatswood office in time for the organisation’s move on the 17th September.

The new Link Housing West Ryde office is located minutes from West Ryde train station and in the same building as the FACS Northern district office, allowing Link Housing to work closely with FACS in the lead up to the SHMT “go live” in December this year.

“This is a positive change for our clients. With offices that are easier to get to and with more space and facilities, we will be able to meet and help more people. Our expansion and new offices is really just about taking steps to fulfil our mission and vision of enhancing lives through community housing.”
